Weekly Inpatient Progress Report. Patient presented with febrile episodes on admission. Blood cultures were drawn and empiric antibiotic therapy was initiated. Over the observed week the patient remained hemodynamically stable with improving temperature curve and decreasing systolic blood pressure readings.

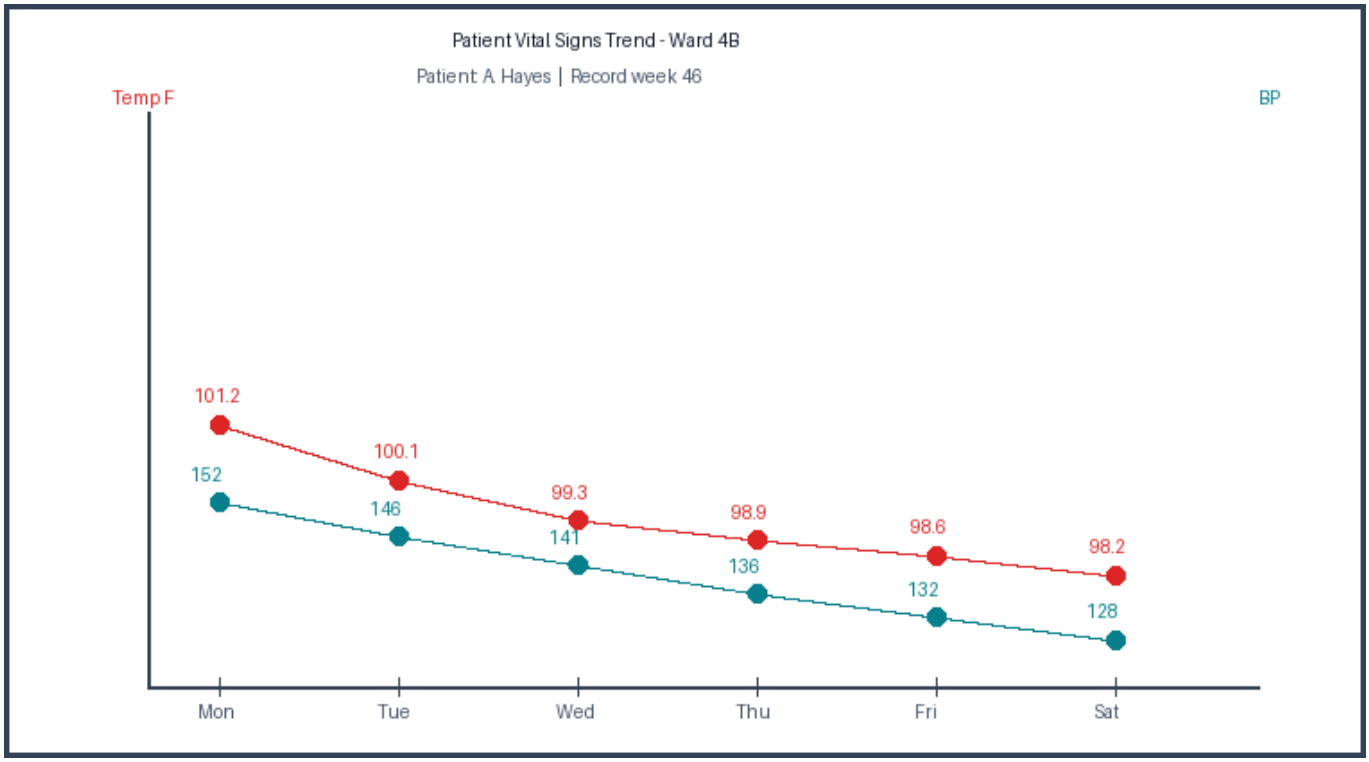

Figure 1. Daily temperature (red) and systolic blood pressure (teal) measurements recorded by the nursing staff. The fever resolved by day six and antihypertensive titration continued per protocol.